"KIDS" VOTE ON SANE FOURTH.

The chiefest argument put forth by the opponents of the "safe and sane Fourth" idea is that the boys and girls are all against an Independence day of the "denatured" sort, and that it isn't right to rob the patriotic youngsters of the time-honored privilege of celebrating the day as it has been celebrated for the past score or more of years.

But are the boys and girls against a "safe and sane" observance of Independence day?

Not if we are to consider the verdict coming from Wilkesbarre, Pa., as voicing the sentiment of the youngsters of the country.

The Times-Leader of that city recently arranged for a popular election in the public and parochial schools of Wilkesbarre on the question of a sane Fourth of July.

When the subject was broached the school authorities gladly took it up. There was a brief campaign, the Times-Leader printing arguments from day to day for and against the "Bloodless Fourth" and "Powderless Patriotism."

The boys and girls went to it fine. On election day the pupils were supplied with blank ballots on which was the printed question:

"Do you favor a safe and sane Fourth of July?"

A total of nearly 5,000 votes were cast, with the following result:

For a sane Fourth, 4,063; opposed, 558.

If the boys and girls in all communities were given a like chance to express themselves on this all-important question, after it had been fully argued pro and con, there is every reason to believe that the vote in favor of the sane variety of Fourth would be overwhelming.

When the children are shown the folly and danger of celebrating the Fourth with death-dealing explosives and toy pistols, as has been the case in recent years—the toll of lives sacrificed last year being 46—three out of every four of them will declare in favor of a sane Fourth.

PROHIBITION ON WANE.

On the whole, it has not been good for prohibition in the West. There has been voting under local option by towns in Illinois, Nebraska and Colorado and by counties in Michigan, with obvious advantages to the thirsty. In Topeka, Kan., there was no direct liquor issue, but a mayor was elected who is understood to favor it.

In Illinois 39 "dry" towns turned to "wet," while only 19 reversed that process. Seventy-two "wet" towns and 110 "dry" remained as they were. Decatur, which went "dry" by 1,020 two years ago, is now "wet" by 500. The cities generally remain with the license party.

In Colorado the "dry" voters made a gain of two towns in 22 voting, but the "wets" still have 13 of the number.

Twenty counties out of 36 voting in Michigan returned "dry" victories, but these will close only 282 saloons out of 1,161 in the voting territory. Of 26 counties already "wet" 14 voted to stay so, while of 10 "dry" counties in the voting lot two reversed themselves. Kent county, including Grand Rapids, repulsed the prohibitionists by a 7,599 majority after a hot campaign. Wexford and Oakland counties returned to the license column after two years of drought. An interesting "dry" victory was won in Ingham county, which holds Lansing, the state capital.

In Nebraska 135 cities and villages voted. Seventy-six of these were carried for license. In the state now the "wet" forces hold 80 towns, with a total population of 171,185; the "dry" sign is on 67 towns, population 86,713. Eleven "wet" towns and 15 "dry" ones flopped April 14.

After a test of "dry" conditions, Alabama has decided in favor of returning to "wet." That is the inevitable conclusion to be drawn from the victory in the primary elections of Emmet O'Neal for governor by a majority of 20,000. Mr. O'Neal was successful over H. D. A. Mallory on the issue of opposition to state-wide prohibition. It is presumed that in Alabama, as in other states, it has been found that prohibition does not prohibit, and the voters have reached the sensible conclusion that legalization of the liquor traffic, with proper restrictions and regulations, is preferable to open or clandestine violations of a prohibitory law. No law can be successfully enforced without public sentiment behind it.

THE OPEN THEATER.

Readers of the Union will recall the frequent reference in these columns to the theater trust which has so long held this coast in its grasp, says the Sacramento Union. Klaw & Erlanger had things so completely in their hands that they were able to say to the theater managers of the United States: "You must take the attractions that we send you or close your theaters."

The result was that the theaters were often dark. The trust, while holding up the theaters on the one hand, held up the actors on the other, and thus only those who would agree to its terms were allowed to play on the trust circuit. Many of the best attractions that have appeared in the east have never crossed the Mississippi, and, of course, even fewer ever reached the Pacific coast.

Finally the Shuberts started to fight the trust, and now they have won a notable victory all over the country, including this side of the continent. The open doors for the theater on the Pacific coast is now established, and as a result in less than a week the Sacramento theater—the Clinie—has been able to book thirty-eight attractions that it would have been impossible to get under the old regime.

That does not mean that the Shuberts have a corner on the plays. It means that all the attractions of the Shuberts, all the attractions of every other circuit, or of no circuit at all, are to appear for the first time in years on this coast, and of course in the Sacramento theater. It means frequent performances during the entire season; and it means that we shall see the best that the stage has to offer.

SALT LAKE IS OVERWHELMED

Ball Tossers from Zion Are Shown the Fine Points of Baseball.

The Ogden baseball team administered a crushing defeat to Salt Lake at the local Fair Grounds yesterday afternoon. Toner, though wild at the start, settled after the third inning, and had the Salt Lakers at his mercy the remainder of the game.

Ogden had little trouble in solving the curves of Moser, slashing the sphere for three doubles and a triple. The same teams will play again today at 3 p. m.

SETTLEMENT OF WAGE SCALE IS REACHED

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Amicable adjustment of the controversy between the railroads in the southeastern territory and their conductors and trainmen has been reached, it was announced by the mediators tonight.

The agreement provides for a substantial increase in wages and for improved conditions and hours of labor. The adjustment averts a threat of strike of 10,000 men that would have involved approximately 9,000 others. The settlement is regarded as a distinct victory for the employees, although concessions were made by both sides. The men have been granted a wage increase ranging from 10 to 40 per cent.

WOMAN DRIVES MAN TO SUICIDE

Edward Wilson Grew Desperate After Accusation of Infidelity—Will Recover.

SALT LAKE, July 2.—Under the goad of his wife's accusations of infidelity, Edward Wilson, 24 years of age, and following the occupation of huckster, attempted to commit suicide by shooting himself at his home, 231 Glendale avenue, shortly after midnight. With the cry, "You will never again accuse me of being with other women," and in sight of his wife, Wilson had ended a recurrent quarrel by drawing a revolver and placing the muzzle to his left breast, fired the shot.

The young wife's screams and the pistol shot aroused a neighbor, Ephraim Clawson, and John Ingram, a boarder at the Wilson home, and when the two men rushed into the room they found Wilson lying on the floor in a pool of blood.

When the police were notified the run was made to the home in the police automobile and the wounded man taken to the Emergency hospital. After the first attention by Dr. F. B. Sprague, Wilson was removed to St. Mark's hospital, and it is not thought that his condition is critical.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Wilson confessed that in the latter part of their eleven months of married life there has been a succession of quarrels, all beginning with the wife's fear that her husband devoted some of his evenings in the company of other women. Last night the quarrel had been resumed upon the return home of Wilson, and tired of the "nagging," as he expressed it, he determined to end it all by killing himself.

INSURGENTS CALL UPON ROOSEVELT.

there was a delicious quality about the "iced tea."

"Yes," added Mr. Madison, with deliberation; "we took that for a compliment to prohibition Kansas. You know we are a mighty moral state. The senator here never says anything stronger than 'by golly' and when the colonel said 'by George' once or twice he looked almost shocked."

Senator Bristow giggled. They were all immensely pleased.

"My son," broke out the tall senator from Kansas, laying a lean hand on his interlocutor's knee, "I can say one thing to you, Theodore Roosevelt is a bigger and a broader man today than before he went away. That man is a marvel. What he says rings. When he speaks he speaks the truth, and naked truth, whether truth naked is beautiful or ugly. It comes out like a shot and, like a shot, it goes right to the mark. I never saw him show such incisiveness. His jaw has a new angle of determination. He seems to me not only broader, but more alert."

"Was anything said about the Pinchot-Ballinger controversy?"
"No," answered Mr. Madison, himself a member of the Ballinger-Pinchot committee, "nothing. We thought the colonel avoided that subject with admirable tact. It was one that would have been difficult for me to talk about with propriety to the colonel."

Mr. Murdock had been listening attentively, checking a phrase here and there that he thought sounded too radical.

"As an old newspaper man myself, let me turn the tables on you," he suggested suddenly.

"Let me interview my interviewer. How does this visit—the mere fact of it—impress you as likely to impress the country?"

"Well," began the interviewed interviewer tentatively, "there are a great many people who will interpret the bare fact that you three insurgents were received here today and that you came away with the air of having been well received, as encouragement for your attitude on public questions."

Mr. Murdock listened, with his mouth tightly shut, but smiled out of the corners of his eyes and nodded as he listened.

"I'll tell you something. I'm red headed," he said. "I don't go where I'm not wanted or where I think I'm not wanted. I might get into the wrong front yard by mistake, but there would surely be a fracas on the porch before I got out when I discovered my error. I suppose I was as radical as the forefront of the insurgents. I don't call myself a progressive; I'm an insurgent. And Senator Bristow, here, kept step with me in the senate. I don't have to say anything more to you with that preface, after the statement we just gave out."

"Your statement that Colonel Roosevelt praised your attitude toward the railroad rate bill seems especially significant," it was suggested.

"I don't think so," said Senator Bristow. "The whole country knows that the insurgents shamed the railroad bill in all its important particulars. Our statement adds nothing to the general fund of information. We hear that the administration is pleased with the bill, too."

Send Name and Address Today—You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, falling memory and lame back, brought on by excessive, unnatural drains, or the follies of youth, that has cured so many weak and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his manly power and virility, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge. In a plain, ordinary sealed envelope to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men and I am convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor failure ever put together.

I think I owe it to my fellow man to send them this in confidence so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop dragging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest-acting restorative, uplifting, SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 4420 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $3.00 to $5.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but I send it entirely free.

Under Ogden There May Be Gas

But in Ogden there is now plenty of this invisible compound which is now being sent in pipes underground to every door. Yes, Ogden is fast becoming a consumer of gas, and nothing can stop the increasing and popular fuel from reaching every household.

One year ago Ogden was gasless, but since Old Mother Earth has made another revolution around the great luminous globe of day Ogden has changed to a gaseous town, and men have come to say, "I want gas put in."

The Stillwell Terrace has 28 gas ranges recently installed. Professor Smith's terrace has 9 ranges, Peery Apartment Flats have 11 gas ranges, the Lawrence Hotel has 7 ranges, Mrs. E. West, housekeeping rooms, has 5 gas ranges, Reed's Terrace 9 ranges, Chase rooming house at 2354 Grant piped for 11 ranges and heaters, 2260 Washington avenue, housekeeping apartments, is being piped for 6 ranges and water heaters, and other places where there are from two to four small ranges for the use of tenants. In fact, all the down-town buildings that are being changed or under construction are arranging for gas stove cooking.

Electric Irons and Tungsten Lamps

And the electric washing machine are the three most useful inventions in our homes. Electric irons use 5 1-2 cents of current each hour the iron is used continuously, if not turned off. A 24-candle power tungsten uses 40 watts per hour, while the 16 candle-power Edison lamp uses 56 watts per hour, and the electric washing machine uses 170 watts per hour if run continuously, costing 13-4 cents per hour.

Why do you want to heat up the coal stove for ironing and break your back over the wash-tub when it costs so little to do it with electricity?

Things Look Bright For

LUCKY MAN Stockholders

The recent sale of stock in the Lucky Man Mine has produced sufficient means to send the work forward. Those who are just from the district in which this mine is located are filled with enthusiasm over the prospects. Some miners who have been on the property lately are very desirous of going to work on the Lucky Man Mine and are willing to take stock for their wages—not only are these men willing, but eager to do this, knowing the property as they do.

There is hardly a shadow of doubt that the mine will be among the big shippers by the first of December; some of the experts who have seen the property recently and who know what the proposed work consists of, say that very profitable shipments will begin before that time.

Farrell, the manager, will be in Ogden for a few more days and will then go to supervise the work of sinking the main shaft into the ore body—owners of stock may be justified in looking for rapid increase in value just as soon as the proposed work is completed.
